THE STORE AND THE COMMUNITY

The primary purpose of a retail store is, of course, to provide a place where people may buy their food and clothes, hardware and all the rest of the necessities and conveniences of life. The merchant acts as purchasing agent for the consumer.

But beyond that, retailing serves a highly important and often overlooked function. It is one of the outstanding builders of the community. The store is the place where they should—to attract business, but they pull solidly together—or at least they should—in matters that affect civic progress and the creation of a better town. This is good business for them, as well as good business for everyone.

With new residential developments come new stores to establish attractive shopping centers. That makes for greater convenience for the buyer. If the consumer isn't satisfied with his local merchants, he can drive a few miles to another community and spend his money there. The local merchant must come up to standard or watch his trade dwindle away.

The retail merchant is the foundation of American community life.

Sparks and Sundries

By Samuel H. Stuart

The wife of a union member who is also the mother of two children who carry cards said that she often wondered if the workers had really benefited by high union-obtained wages. She observed that the $25 a week wage, which her husband drew when they first married, meant more to their comfort than his present pay, with union dues, social security deductions, income taxes and high prices to gobble it up.

It is certain that the wage-earner's wife was not opposed to the principle of collective bargaining, as it is the only safeguard against starvation wages and sweat-shop working conditions. What she deplored were the high union dues, which go to enrich labor agitators—collective bargaining could be carried on by representatives of the workers serving on a dollar-a-week basis—and so-called "social security," which very few workers live long enough to enjoy. Income taxes on the low-income group are necessitated by functions of government which might well be dispensed with, for they give the average worker or citizen little in return of real benefit.

The inflated price structure, the fourth and greatest wage sapper, is due to the high wage scale—compared with the low wages and price rises will prove this to any open-minded person. These wage raises have been engineered by the paid labor-agitators, in order to justify their highly-paid positions—not by a demand from the ranks. It is only human nature to reply, "Yes," when asked if one wants more income. This is the psychology upon which labor-leaders rely to get support for over-frequent wage-increase demands. Without such propagandizing the bulk of workers would wait longer before demanding raises or never so if prices were stabilized. Social—legislators and labor-agitators, both in an effort to prove their worth as the disturbers of our nation's internal peace, while posing as the friends of labor.

A number of intelligent union members have expressed themselves as satisfied with the wages they were receiving before a strike call was issued and have invariably attributed the strike to the work of agitators, plus a minority of malcontents who are never satisfied. If recurring labor-unrest is professionalized, as my information seems to indicate, it is certainly a pity that a few ambitious men have the power to keep honest labor in a constant ferment. It is a pity that the labor agitators, however, that many union workers and their wives are beginning to doubt the wisdom of their self-appointed leaders. They might also question, with profit, the motives of the social-minded agitators who are in advance to political leaders.

The so-called "rials" of "war criminals" seem to one who considers current events in the light of history as merely a throwback to the barbaric ways of ancient conquerors, who tortured to death their vanquished foes. Killing off the opposition's despised leaders breeds only hatred—not a spirit of peace and amity. What these labor agitators deliberately, deserve is beside the point. The principle of adding the loser to be solely to blame is dangerous. It just might happen that in some future conflict the wrong side would triumph. The precedent set for exterminating losing leaders, right or wrong.

PROGRESS IN EDUCATION

You may recall that, three years ago, a report on the deplorable condition of the school system of Kentucky jolted the people like an earthquake. That report for the Committee on Education—backed by the backward rapidly—with teachers paid less than domestic servants, was made by Dr. Maurice F. Seay, Dean of the University of Kentucky.

Lately Dr. Seay has been checking up on progress made by the public schools since his original report was published by the Committee for Kentucky. The gains are heartening indeed.

Enrollment of children of school age for the 1946-1947 school was 85 per cent as compared with 78 per cent in 1941-1942. Fifteen per cent under a perfect score is still too big a margin.

In the last three years attendance has increased 5 per cent.

In the last four years the average length of the school term in Kentucky has moved up from 135 to 176 days.

Since 1945 the number of teachers employed has increased from 17,711 to 18,650. It has gone from $942 to $1650.

Home economics enrollments were 2,271 in five years.

In three years ending with the 1947 term bus transportation was provided for 11,255 additional rural pupils.

In four years the amount spent per pupil increased from $59 to $83.94.

The foregoing gains are encouraging, even though they have not kept pace with rising costs. In practically everything else too people pay for. But certainly education in Kentucky is making wholesome gains.

Remember the date and be there! Seay's only remuneration is the public's gratitude plus pleasure in a big job well done.

The American Way

A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY

By GEORGE PECK

The man who last November 2 made monkeys of the polsters and confounded practically all of the experts, has a golden opportunity to be one of the truly great presidents of this nation.

Deserted by the leaders of his own Democratic Party, he waged a campaign, in the face of every possible discouragement, that aroused the admiration of the American people, even including those who were his opponents.

For him, he just would not be licked, and he wasn't. He was a fighter, and today Harry Truman is a loved throughout the 48 states of the Union (Maine included).

As he himself declared on the eve of his triumph, he owes nothing to any man, certainly not to his party. He can be exactly the kind of a president he wishes to be—free and untrammelled.

Not our president, with the possible exception of George Washington, has ever gone to the White House with positively no debts attached to him, and nothing to anyone. Harry's only debt is to the rank and file of the American people who elected him.

For one, I am going to believe that "The Champ" intends to give us the best administration that he knows how. If he fails to make a place for himself in history as the "best of the great," among a handful of great presidents, it will be due to errors of judgment, not to errors of the heart.

The election campaign fought by our President and Vice-President has been the best for most of the American people.

As one of those American people, I have an obligation and a desire to be helpful. Please do not consider me bumptious in offering some advice to the man who preside over our destinies for the next four years. I would refer our president to the erudite saying of two great Chinese philosophers—Confucius and Lao Tzu.

Over 2,400 years ago, in the 6th Century B.C., Confucius said: "Government is good when it makes happy those who live under it." Lao Tzu reacts those who live far away.

That most certainly describes the kind of government we have today. America for a century and a half.

And again Confucius said: "The man and good ruler is benevolent without expending treasure; he is serene without being proud; he is awe-inspiring without being ferocious."

That most certainly describes the qualities of two of our great presidents, Washington and Lincoln.

And again, Confucius said: "In its highest antiquity, the people did not know they had rulers. In the next age, they knew, they despised them. . . . In the next, they despised them. . . . In the next, they despised them. . . . The people starved because those in authority were not devoted to too many taxes. . . . The people are difficult to govern because those placed over them are mediocre."

Could it be that Lao Tzu had in mind such things as price controls, rationing, which is black markets, free medicine, federal aid to education, public housing, excess profit taxes, etc? It could be, Mr. President.

December, for as far back as I can remember, has started with a heavy accident toll. The rate of traffic mishaps has built gradually until by the end of the month all the real spirit of Christmas has been lost in the sadness and misery caused by carelessness. Carelessness about the homes, in the schools and shops and on the highways has made many a home have its holiday spirit buried in a sea of gloom brought on by death or injury.

Let's all make this the safest December in the history of Jefferson County. Your County Police Education and Safety Division pleads with you, "Don't let death take your Holiday." To finish this year and begin 1944 with health and happiness will cost you nothing but a careful and safe method of living. We all know that the red and green Christmas stands for good cheer and happiness, knowing and obeying the red and green of our traffic signals will mean safer drivers and more live pedestrians.

And a warning to all about the Old "Christmas Cheer" — that cheer should be in your heart, not in your stomach. This holiday season make yourself prom-

Balance, Economy Stressed For 1949

Keeping farming in good balance next year is suggested by Dean Thomas P. Cooper in the annual outlook report issued by the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Kentucky. He also emphasizes economy of production without over-expansion as sound procedure for farmers.

The report deals with the general outlook for farmers for 1949. It is expected that the tobacco situation and prospects for beef cattle, hogs, sheep, wool

BE MARKET WISE

By Miriam Kelley

Field Agent in Marketing and Consumer Information, Department of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Kentucky, U.S.D.A. Cooperator.

A quick look at the market shows fruits and vegetables to keep many food costs low, food values high.

Citrus fruits, oranges and grapefruit from Florida are good quality, low in price. Select carefully, remembering the fact that the fruit which is just picked is the best.

Indications point to continued high food prices and "strong demand for meat will be especially favorable to Kentucky lamb producers in 1949."

Prices of dairy products may be down next year, but feed prices also will be lower and net income may be about the same as this year. The same situation may exist in poultry and egg production.

Curing Cured In Meat Circular

All good meat-curing mixtures should contain salt, sugar and saltpeter. It is stated in "Killing, Curing and Curing Pork," a circular of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Kentucky.

Pork may be cured either in a "dry" or "brine" cure, or a combination of the two. There are many variations of these two methods, including the "dry salt," "dry sugar cure" and "molasses sugar cure" methods. The "dry salt" cure consists of salt only and is used principally in curing heavy side meat or fat cuts to be used for seasoning meat. Or, the "brine" cure is satisfactory. Granulated sugar is preferable and is the kind much used by meat packers.

Yellow Sweet Corn Out Produces White

Six acres of Golden Cross Bantam sweet corn brought a total return of $1,083 to William and Albert Schnitzer of Jefferson County, or an average of $175 per acre. Mr. Schnitzer reported to H. C. Brown, associate county agent, that the yield was 100 bushels of white sweet corn, 100 bushels of yellow sweet corn, 100 bushels of white sweet corn, 100 bushels of yellow sweet corn, 100 bushels of white sweet corn, 100 bushels of yellow sweet corn.

CUTS TIME, WORK IN MILKING COWS

To some farmers, milking cows is just an added chore, but to Mr. Cowan of Cowan and Sons, Fleming County, it has become a pleasure since he built his dairy parlor, he told Farm Agent James Stephens. He is proud of the fact that his barn is less expensive than many, yet it is so efficient that he recently was able to do the feeding, milking and cleaning for 10 cows in 20 minutes. The milking parlor system is used, with feed box and door in front of each cow, feed and hay being stored overhead and fed through chutes.

COLORED RECREATION The Values of "The Community"

The "Thanksgiving program that was given at Orell was a success. The communities were well represented. On December 23 at Jeffersontown, we will have our Christmas program and shop. Berry town will certainly have a grand shop. They are putting their all into it.

On December 18, at 7:30 p.m. the Jefferson County Recreation Board will have Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus to arrive at Fourth and the river. Everyone is invited, especially the little people. Don't forget the goodwill caravan, every community is asked to donate cars of food for the less fortunate, December 20.

When you buy and use Christmas Seals you are helping save lives. Buy Christmas Seals and use them on all your holiday mail.

THE FIRST GIFT

By Nancy Wilson

Editor's Note—Miss Wilson, a senior in Meritt High School, Dallas, Texas, is a daughter of Col. Garrett H. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, and a granddaughter of the late Mrs. Sallie Durrett Thompson, formerly a Jeffersonian news correspondent from the Preston Highway area. Mrs. Wilson sends this story, written by Nancy and awarded one of the prizes in a short story contest, for Christmas publication. Nancy's family was in Germany for some time (Col. Wilson with the occupation forces), where she studied under private tutors and attended the Academy of Music in Stuttgart. Publishers of The Jeffersonian are glad to hear from her and finally answer their prayers and readers will appreciate, as do we, Nancy's lovely Christmas story.

Long years ago, in a quiet little town nestled in the hills, there lived a very pious man and his wife. They were very happy together. When the little girl was 7 years old, she was taken to the temple where she would devote her life to the service of God. Her parents were very sad at the thought of their little girl leaving, but they felt honored that their daughter should choose such a station. In this way she would grow up in the presence of God.

Preparations were made. Mary told her playmates goodbye, and with her parents, Anna and Joseph, she began her journey in the early dawn of a warm autumn day. As they walked along the hot and dusty road, the young child skipped merrily along, singing and sometimes running out into the meadows to pick a few flowers for her mother. It seemed as though she were a flower herself, the loveliest and the most beautiful of blossoms. Her pink cheeks, bright eyes, and shining hair but a few features one would notice especially.

In the late afternoon, when they reached a small village along the road, they decided it was time to rest. Joseph found an inn where they could stay for the night. While her parents rested from the journey, Mary sat out on the steps of the inn. She was so small and alone. Great tears came to her eyes as she thought of the home and her little friends and her joy which she had left behind.

Just then a young lad came walking by. He was attracted by Mary's smallness, and her beauty almost took his breath away. When he saw the tears just picked up the child and he asked if there were not something he could do for her. May be she had lost something? No, she was just thinking of her home and her playmates. The lad asked would she wait there for just a few minutes and he would soon return. He came back with a very special piece of wood and then he turned down the path beside her. As Mary watched him, he began to carve a beautiful baby doll, fashioning each exquisite feature with great care. When he finished the carving he very gently handed the doll to Mary. A radiant smile lighted her face.

as she clasped the tiny doll to her heart and sang, thanked the boy for making it for her. The boy knew that he had helped the little girl through a very lonely moment.

Anna and Joseph arose early the next morning and with their little daughter they proceeded on their pilgrimage.

When they reached the temple where Mary was to remain, they began to feel the sadness of parting from the one who had brought such happiness to them in those few short years. They remained to witness the great solemn and dramatic ceremony of her dedication, her service to God. Then they said farewell to her and returned once more of the quiet loneliness of their little home in the far-off hills.

Mary grew lovelier with the passing of the years; the beauty of the temple with the greatest of her song were the sweetest; her prayers seemed the most sincere; and when she lighted the candle she seemed to glow more brilliantly than all the others. Among her few small belongings she had a tiny doll which she had kept since her birth. It was a visible link between her life in the temple and the last few days of her childhood when she had loved parents. The little doll always returned her smile and there was so much comfort in having it.

At the appointed time the young men assembled in the temple. And there, to their astonishment, was blossoming a perfectly beautiful dazzling white light on the road which belonged to a young man named Joseph. He was a carpenter of the House of David from the city of Nazareth.

So Mary and Joseph were betrothed. After their espousal ceremony, they went to live in Nazareth, where Joseph had his little shop.

Toward the end of the year a decree was issued that all who belonged to the House of David should go to Bethlehem to register. Mary and Joseph prepared for the arduous trip over the hills and down the rocky highways.

When they reached the city it was so crowded that Joseph could find no place for them to rest. The keeper of the inn where they were to stay told them that a stable which was just outside the gates of the city. Wearily they went to their lowly shelter.

There at midnight was born to them a baby son. Amidst the singing of angels and the praise of the shepherds, Mary lifted her precious Baby and placed Him on her robe, covering Him with the clothes which she had so carefully carried with her on the journey. Then she placed in the tiny outstretched hand of her Son, His first gift, the little wooden carving of a beautiful baby which she had carried with her her always and which she had cherished throughout the years.

As Joseph knelt before the Child in great love and adoration, he saw the carving in the Baby's hand. In amazement Joseph exclaimed: "Oh, Mary, it was YOU for whom I made this little wooden toy, so many years ago!"

As they glanced together at the doll the features seemed more and more to assume the very same likeness and expression of the infant who lay there smiling into their adoring eyes.
